Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Practical Work in the School Room: A Transcript of the Object Lessons on the Human Body Children should learn these lessons on the Human Body, that the may better value and take care of the house they live in. Each lesson should be very carefully developed when taught. No intelligent teacher will permit the recitation of the formulas to degenerate into rote-work. Children are not parrots. II. The following plan has been observed in the preparation of this work: - First, A model lesson, as given in our own class-rooms, to show how each subject should be developed and taught. Second, A formula, embodying the principal facts, etc., given during the development and teaching. Third, Questions for the formula, intended to aid in concert or individual recitation of the summaries it contains. Fourth, Directions for touching. These are given very minutely, because we think appropriate touching, or pointing to the part under description, when convenient, adds much interest to the recitation; it makes the facts seem more real to the children. Fifth, Questions on the lesson, designed to recall instructions, given during its development, which may or may not be found in the formula. These questions are important; therefore, do not omit them. Use them frequently. The pupils may reply in their own words, if this method is deemed preferable.
