Learning Curves

By Helen Gaize

Paperback. Book Condition: New. Not Signed; Despite following medical advice to the letter, as well as having been told by her doctor that all was well, Helen was faced with Grade 3 breast cancer at the age of 48, already at Stage 2 on discovery. The series of surgeries and treatments that followed eventually culminated in a double mastectomy, but this potentially gruelling walk back to health was taken with God, with grace and with some unexpected surprises and delights, 'pearls' which were too good to keep to herself. Learning Curves is a memoir in two parts. The first part, 'Learning Curves and Pearls', describes her passage through a potentially fatal illness - a journey in faith and frailty towards a positive outcome. The second part, 'Learning Curves and Lollipops', describes the difficult pathway back to physical wholeness, including coming to terms with a new body and some growth and differences in outlook. This process was accompanied by sweet treats that she came to think of as 'lollipops from the Lord'. Helen's journey back to health contained many soul-searching decisions, post-operative issues and problems, but was ultimately accompanied by experiences to wonder at, as well as a large helping of...
