On heating the right limb in an oil bath the gas is disengaged, and in the degree in which this occurs the pressure in-Jiio 157 creases, and the gas ultimately liquefies and collects in the other leg; the process is accelerated by placing this in a freezing mixture. Solid carbonic acid evaporates very slowly, and is a perfectly harmless substance. By means of an alcohol thermometer its temperature has been found to be about--90. A small quantity placed on the hand does not produce the sensation of such great cold as might be expected. This arises from the imperfect contact. But if the solid be mixed with ether, the cold produced is so intense that when...
