Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.7in.In his famous military-industrial complex speech President Eisenhower, arguably the 20th Centurys foremost military leader, warned his fellow citizens as follows: We must never let the weight of this combination of military and industry endanger our liberties or democratic processes. We should take nothing for granted. Only an alert and knowledgeable citizenry can compel the proper meshing of the huge industrial and military machinery of defense with our peaceful methods and goals, so that security and liberty may prosper together. -Pres. Eisenhower, 1961 Today we might add the global business-government complex to the military-industrial complex and come up with a fair statement of what both the Tea Party and the Occupy Wall Street movements seem to fear. Both would agree that as citizens we need to compel one or two or all of these overwhelming forces that are shaping our lives, to act responsibly, and both factions might go on to agree that in order to do so we need to become that alert and knowledgeable citizenry President Eisenhower urged us to become some 50 years ago. But, how do we become alert and knowledgeable when bombarded by endless warnings and attacked by rapid fire arguments based on facts (or factoids) or on lies (or (half-truths) or on misquotes (or context challenged quotes) What we are almost forced to do is seek shelter in our favored mental enclaves where we are buttressed in what we already believe by the company of fellow believers. As the author blogged (from early 2007 to late 2012) on what he saw as critical political issues, he attempted to gather facts carefully and to adjust his perspective when necessary. Whether he succeeded at...
